Under Rigid Discipline.

The troops who will go there will be under rigid military discipline, and there will be under rigid military discipline, and there will be all work and no play. The men will be all work and no play. The men will be required to observe the rules which are enforced in the regular army. It is estimated that over thirty thus sand men will be encamped on the listoric old battle ground, the largest number of armed men ever mobolized in the United States during time of peace.

The various field movements, in which all branches of the service will purticipate, including infantry, cavalry, artillery and signal corps, will prove most interesting, and will give the militia boys experience which they have never before had, and which will be of great benefit to them, as they will be under the command of United States army officers, and under their instructions they will gain much valuable information.

The manoeuvres will take place the latter part of September, and all arrangements for them are being made by the United States War Department.

States of Pennsylvania, Mississippi and Maine have decided not to send any of their militia to take part in the affair.
Owing to this fact it is impossible that the appointment will be considerably changed, and the number of troops from this State increased, and in that event it would necessarily follow that some portion of the Seventy-first Regiment, or other detaclied companies, will be ordered to attend the field operations.
Another important change has been made in connection with the manoeuvres;
